W. W. Watson, Leading Real Estate Man Restored to Health by Paine's Celery Compound.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Mr. W. W. Wat led to worrying, fretting and desponson's reputation throughout the West for unerring judgment in the valuation of land has made him foremost among the most conservative, careful class of cheerful again. investors in Chicago.

investors in Chicago.

Unlike many hard driven business men, the owner of "Alpine Heights," that splendid suburb of Chicago, has not neglected his health on account of his exacting business. The following unrequested statement from Mr. Watson shows how consistent with his life-long, careful, conscientious and successful business habis has been his attention to getting well. He states in the Times Herald:

"Upon the recommendation of a friend."

"Upon the recommendation of a friend I used Paine's calery compound for head aches, constipation, indigestion and loss aches, constipation, indigestion and loss of sleep, and found it all it was recommended to be. I suffer no more from headaches, sleep soundly at night, and am now in perfect health. This is the only medicine that I have ever taken for these complaints, which has benefited me. at all." W. W. THE MAELSTROM.

How It Poels to Re on the Edge of the Great Whirlpool. Off the coast of Norway, between two islands of the Lofoden group, is the largest whirlpool in the world. Its name, Maelstrom, means "whirling stream," and the title is well earned.

The great Maelstrom is no longer held a superstitlens fear, and maritime charts

The great Maeistrom is no longer held in superstitions fear, and maritime charts have taught the sailors of the world where the danger lies and how to avoid it, so that accidents rarely occur—nover, except through ignorance or a previous disaster that has rendered a vessel unmanageable. Several years ago the captain of a sailing vessel, desirous of seeing the famous ing vessel, destrous of seeing the famous whirlpool at close quarters, was assured by his Norwegian pilot that he might venture near enough for examination without danger. And here is what the captain danger. And here is what the captain saw:

"I went on the main topsail yard with a good glass. I had been seated but a few minutes when my ship entered the dish of the whirlpool. The velocity of the water altered her course three points toward the center. This alarmed me extremely for a moment. I thought destruction was inevitable. But she answered her helm for a moment. I thought destruction was inevitable. But she answered her helm nobly, and we ran along the edge, the waters foaming round us in every form.

"The sensations I experienced are difficult to describe. Imagine an immense circle running round of a diameter of one and a half miles, the velocity increasing as it approximated the center and gradually changing its dark blue color to white, foaming, tumbling, rushing to its vortex, very much concave—as much so as the water in a funnel when half run out. The noise, too, hissing, rearing, dashing, all noise, too, hissing, roaring, dashing, all pressing on the mind at once, presented the most awful, grand and solemn sight I ever beheld. We were near it about 18 minutes and in sight of it two hours. It is evidently a subterranean passage. From its magnitude I should not doubt that intent destruction would be the force of the content stant destruction would be the fate of a dozen of our largest ships were they drawn in at the same moment. The pilot says that several vessels that had become unmanageable have been sucked down, and that whales have also been destroyed."

Where does it go, this wonderful whirl? None can say—as yet. There is a theory, generally accredited, that the Maelstrom is subterraneously connected with the gulf of Bothnia. It is only a theory so far, but the time is probably close at hand when positive knowledge may take its place.— London Answers.

What the Horns Sounded.

There was always plenty of tongue, and men loved the "gallant chiding" which so enraptured Shakespeare. Last of all, after endless doubles and beating of the water and all the thousand stratagems of the hunted deer, the pursuers by slotting and relaying, but mainly by honest hunting, run up to their stag, and he turns to bay. And then comes such a hullabaloc of horns and halloes and baying of hounds as never was heard—all of it prolonged to the utmost, that every hound and every sportsman may come up before the dealing of the death stroke. And then the horns changed their note and blew the hart, which etiquette forbade to be blown till which etiquette forbade to be blown till that supreme mement, and therewith followed elaborate ceremonies for cleaning the deer and preparing for the worry, or, as it was called, quarry (curee). Finally the master and the gentlemen next in rank to him held up the deer's head above the hounds' portion and "skillfully loud" the master cried out, "Dedow" (cad ho!), which was the signal for blooding the hounds and for a fresh outburst of ing the hounds and for a fresh outburst of noise. "Hallo every wight and every man blow the death" is the order in the book, and they kept on halloing and blowing, for it was the rule that as often as any man began to blow the rest should bear him fellowship. Then came a fresh blast for the coupling of the hounds, with a pause of an "Ave Maria while" between the potes, yet, another blast when the the notes, yet another blast when the hounds went home and a final concert led by the master on arriving at the hall. Thus the whole countryside knew when their lord had killed his deer and rejoiced accordingly. - Macmillan's Magazine

The greatest natural wonder in Java, if not in the entire world, is the justly celebrated "Gheko Kamdka Gumko," or "Home of the Hot Devils," known to the world as the "Island of Fire." This geological singularity is really a lake of boiling mud situated at about the center of the plains of Gashegara at its salled as the plains of Grobogana and is called an island because the great emerald sea of vegetation which surrounds it gives it that appearance. The "island" is about two miles in circumference and is situated at a distance of almost exactly 50 miles from Solo. New the center of this realogical. J. W. Cline, of Philadelphia, is regisilarge church building is filled; and as free immense columns of soft, hot mud the church are filled to overflowing. Mr. imay be seen continually rising and falling like great timbers thrust through the boil-ing substratum by giant hands and then again quickly withdrawn. Besides the phenomenon of the boiling mud columns there are scores of gigantic bubbles of hot slime that fill up like huge balloons and keep up a series of constant explosions, the intensity of the detonations varying with the size of the bubble. In times p the Javanese authorities say, there was a tall, spirelike column of baked mud on the west edge of the lake which constantly belched a pure stream of cold water, but this has long been obliterated, and every-thing is now a seething mass of bubbling mud and slime, a marvel to the visitors who come from great distances to see it.

WOES OF A RESTAURANT KEEPER. His Napkins and Even His Casters Carried Off by Customers.

It was during the second half of the rush for dinner in a restaurant near Washington market, where several thou-sands persons are fed daily, when a great clamor arose for napkins, and waiters rushed about gathering up what few could be found on the tables and distributing these, and others were dispatched to the laundry for more. Henry, the head waiter, went around meantime trying to pacify the people, who were angry and declaring that it was a shame that the house couldn't give a man a napkin to wipe his mouth with. Some customers fell back upon the time hon-ored custom of the neighborhood and used the corners of the tablecloths in lieu of the missing napkins.
"It's a curious and an annoying matter how we run out of napkins every little while," said Henry. "You might suppose that because they are laundered so frequently they disappear in the regular way by wearing out, but that is not true. You will seldom see napkins in a restaurant which show the effect of wear. They go because they are stolen. This is true not only of such popular restaurants as this, but also of every restaurant in this city. Who takes them I do not know. All we know is that they disappear regularly, and our supposi-tion is that some are carried off by peo-ple who deliberately intend to steal them and others by persons who put them into their pockets by mistake. I know one such person as this. It was a woman of undoubted honesty, but it was a joke among the members of her own family that she never dined at a hotel or restaurant without carrying off a napkin which she had unconsciously stuffed into her pocket. We got 18 dozen big dinner napkins a few weeks ago. Within three weeks they had all disappeared but five dozen, and now there isn't one in the house.

"Tableware goes in the same way sometimes. A little while ago we got eight dozen of these salt and pepper casters." Here Henry pointed to some neat little cut glass casters with silver plated tops. "We put them on the tables during the time the wagon boys were coming in here for breakfast last fall, just before they would start out to sell their day's buyings on the streets. gee!' they would say. 'That's a pretty nice thing. I guess I'll swipe it just for luck—see?' And when they left every And when they left every day we would miss a few casters. Five dozen of them were lost within a few weeks."—New York Sun.

Hunting the Found.

Hunting the Found.

There are queer ways of making a living in New York. One Sunday a man advertised that he had found a wallet with a large sum of money in it and gave street and number where he could be addressed. Thirty-five men called, and 15 others wrote him letters. The losers stated the sum at all the way from $4,000 to $25,000, and most of them gave the denominations of the bills. He was promised all the way from $1,000 to $7,000 to restore the lost wallet, but there being none to restore he couldn't do it. No person advertises a "found" that he doesn't receive calls from at least a dozen people who seem to make at least a dozen people who seem to make a business of trying to get possession of lost articles belonging to others. They must be successful sometimes, or they would not keep it up.—Detroit Free Press.

The first water dams were constructed by the beavers, and the engineers have never been able to improve upon the models presented by these industrious workers. Their dams are wide at the bottom, narrow at the top, are well supported and seldom give way.
